CREATIVE GIFTS MEAN THE MOST

Madison, 14, asked her friend what presents meant the most to her. The answer surprised her—it wasn't about expensive new gadgets, but about hand-crafted gifts that make heartfelt connections.

The perfect gift doesn't have to be expensive or take a lot of time to make. Knowing the receiver's interests and hobbies is the first step toward creating a meaningful gift. After that, use your imagination! Here are some examples:

MAKE A FRIENDSHIP BRACELET. Grab some different colored thread (like embroidery or cross-stitch thread) from the store or maybe even your closet. Braid the strings together to make a cool bracelet.

MAKE A SPECIAL CARD. Write a couple of sentences talking about the good times you've had with this person and the memories the two of you will never forget. Maybe include a photo or other item that reminds you of your special times together.

MUSICAL MOMENTS. Everyone loves music! Gift cards from iTunes are very popular right now and come at a minimum of $15. Make an original CD or CD cover.

MAKE IT A MOVIE PACKAGE. Grab a DVD that the two of you would like to watch. Throw in some popcorn and candy to share.

THAT'S THE TICKET. Professional sports tickets cost a lot of money, so get tickets to a game at your local field or go to a high-school or minor league game.

COUPONS ARE COOL. A great gift for parents, family, or friends would be a coupon for things like a car wash, making dinner, baking a cake, washing the dog, mowing the grass, etc.

Discombobulation

BUT WAIT!!!
